SENATOR BYRD'S RESOLUTION

The Industrial Press Service has figured out that in a little more than two years, the Federal Government has spent or loaned $10, 000,000,000. Of the loans, a percentage must be considered bad.
Sixteen billion dollars even in these days isn't a sum within normal comprehension. One Southern congressman has gone to work with his pencil and changed the whole into understandable figures. He finds that at the present rate the expenditures run to nearly $250 a second.
Every time the clock ticks Uncle Sam paid out $250.

But Uncle Sam, this congressman reminds, didn't have the $250. He was taking in only about $125 each second. So with each tick of the clock he was borrowing $125. And paying interest on the borrowed money. He now owes nearly 300,000,000. Someone has figured out that if $1 had been spent each minute of time since the birth of Christ, the total would not yet be one billion dollars.

The new budget sent to congress last week doesn't help any. The first step of a government, or of an individual to society, is to try to keep the financial house in order.
In times of emergency, too, it finds that the very hard to do.
But even in emergencies, it still remains an obligation and the seriousness of the emergency should lead serious direction to the duty of "paying out."

The new budget is over a billion dollars "in the red" with no funds for relief, the soldiers' bonus, or farm benefit payments. We venture the opinion that by the time "the chief" congress adjourns, the budget will be "FIVE BILLIONS OF DOLLARS" in "the red" and its commitments force the national debt well towards four billions.

In the light of the above, The Times-Virginian has one to approve the recent resolution of Virginia's distinguished senator (who we see as the logical Democratic nominee in 1940) Harry Flood Byrd, asking for economy and efficiency in the federal government, so as to live up to the pledge of the Democratic party in 1932 to reduce expenses of the federal government by 25 per cent.

We are glad that this attempt to stratagem the finances of the administration comes from within the party. Senator Byrd has no peer as a loyal Democrat, true to the finest traditions of the party. He deserves a big hand. And we are glad that the party has in its ranks men of courage and strength sufficient to cause them to strive to correct this error before it is too late.
